Dear John:

Even though I can't be with you when you honor Dick Helms, I will be there in spirit.

Dick Helms is one of the finest men I've ever served with, and I wish that he were still there running the place. He was not only a conscientious good man in the job, he is a gentleman, and one always available to help we younger people get along.

With all good wishes,

Barry Goldwater

Dear Dick:

I am truly sorry that I cannot be present when you receive the SASA Medal of Achievement. It is more than time for those of us who owe you so much to demonstrate our respect and gratitude for all you have done for the country. I wish I could be with you to add my thanks to those of the SASA.

Throughout its history the United States has been able to call upon the talents of great public servants to help it through times of crisis and challenge. You, Dick, are one of that list of benefactors of whom much has been asked and too little given. The award you are receiving tonight is but a small expression of your country's thanks, which you have so richly deserved for so long.

You have my congratulations, my best wishes, and my thanks for all the services you have rendered to our country over decades of selfless devotion.

Warm regards,
